Research Paper Writing Workshop & Placement Enabling Program

This is in continuation to our endeavor to give our students best of the opportunities to hone their skills that are useful in legal profession. We have been consistently providing our students various platforms to identify their area of interest so they could attune their knowledge, understanding, & skills required in that specific field in legal profession. One of such areas is legal research which in recent past has acquired a momentum in legal profession. In line of the same, we have come up with conducting Workshop on Legal Research Paper Writing for our students of BA.LL.B. (2019-24).

Introduction ::

Legal professional shall always be a researcher; and researcher always remains a student because learning & understanding the research is a continuous process.

For a student of law, journey of learning & understanding the research begins with understanding its basic fundamentals at the law school. Within the curriculum, it is expected from the students that they would learn and understand the same concept/principle of law as explained by different authors or in different judgements. Beyond curriculum, it is expected that the student is participating in the moot competition or in seminar/conference that also require extensive research to succeed. This all shows the importance of learning the research for a student of law degree program.

We are delighted to inform you that the Lloyd Law College has taken the initiative to organize workshop sessions on basic legal research paper writing for its students. There will be brief sessions with special emphasis on very basic fundamentals of the research that will help & guide the students in their journey of learning the research things at the law school.

Objectives ::

Primary objective of the workshop-sessions is that the participants learn & understand the basic fundamentals of the research writing techniques. Other objectives of the workshop-sessions are:

- Participants learn how to identify research problem;
- Participants learn how to look out for sources for primary research to frame the research questions;
- Participants could draft a sketch of their first research paper.

Outcomes ::

Successful participation of the participants in the workshop-sessions will lead them to apply their understanding of basic fundamentals of research things in first draft of their first ever research paper on law. Participants will be able to identify a research problem and then to frame research questions. They will be able to identify the sources that will share the data/information required to complete their proposed research paper.
